Typical Use

The kit covers the three jobs a teacher does every day. At the board, coloured and white chalk, the 45 cm compass and the 100 cm ruler let the teacher draw clear circles, number lines and diagrams large enough for the back row, and the duster keeps the surface clean between topics. For display, the A1 manila sheets and duct tape turn student group work into wall charts, while the 51 x 71 cm posters provide ready visual material. The wooden teaching clock supports lessons on reading time with hands the whole class can see.

For record-keeping, the A4 ruled exercise book serves as a lesson or attendance log, and the blue, red and green pens make marking and colour-coded notes easy. The boxed pencils, erasers and sharpeners can also be lent to students who arrive without materials. Education departments often add the kit to school lab equipment bulk supply orders so that every new classroom opens with the same basic set; store chalk and paper in a dry cupboard to keep them usable.
