What Is the Black Ball Point Pen Used For?

Black ink is the conventional choice for documents that must be read, copied or scanned clearly: attendance and stock registers, laboratory issue books, examination forms, practical record books and signed delivery notes. The 1 mm ball lays down a firm, even line that stays legible when a page is photocopied or filed for later reference.

The stated minimum writing distance of 2,000 metres from 0.30-0.37 g of ink gives teachers and store-keepers a practical basis for deciding how many pens to issue each term. Keep the cap on when the pen is not in use and store pens away from sunny window sills. Institutions that buy laboratory equipment in India from one source often add black pens to the same order for staff and record keeping.
