What Is the Frisbee Used For?

Pupils learn the backhand throw first: grip the rim with the thumb resting on the upper face, keep the disc flat, and release it with a snap of the wrist towards the partner's chest. Catching practice follows, using a two-handed "sandwich" catch. Once pairs can pass reliably, classes move on to target throwing into marked zones, distance challenges, and team passing games where the disc must be caught in an end zone to score.

Because the disc is soft polyethylene rather than rigid plastic, it is gentler on hands during early catching practice. Use it in an open space away from windows and spectators, and give each team a different colour from the assorted mix so groups can find their own discs quickly.

Supplier

ScienceLab, the trading name of Jain Scientific Equipments Private Limited in Ambala, Haryana, supplies this frisbee as part of a physical education list that also covers balls, ropes, nets and team bibs. A school can order a handful of discs for a class or a larger number for a district programme through one enquiry. See our company profile for more about the company.
