What Is the Classification Poster Used For?

The poster follows a six-kingdom scheme, which is a helpful bridge for students who first learn the five-kingdom system: the prokaryotes grouped as Monera appear here as two kingdoms, Archaebacteria and Eubacteria. Teachers can use it to discuss the criteria behind classification — cell type, whether organisms are single-celled or multicellular, and how they obtain food — and then ask students to place new examples in the right kingdom.

It works well as the centrepiece of a biology chart set for school, with smaller charts on individual groups displayed around it. Hang it at eye level, away from direct sunlight to limit fading, and consider a frame or protective cover if it will be displayed in a busy corridor or laboratory.

Supplier

Jain Scientific Equipments Private Limited, which trades as ScienceLab from Ambala, Haryana, India, supplies the Classification of Living Things Poster alongside its biology apparatus, models and teaching aids. Schools setting up a biology room can order wall charts together with practical equipment and receive a single quotation. Our company profile explains more about the company.
