What Is a Unit System Slide Cabinet Used For?

A department that builds up a prepared-slide collection needs storage that protects slides from dust, breakage and mix-ups. Keeping slides flat on horizontal trays helps mounted specimens and coverslips stay in position over the years, and giving each slide its own compartment shows at a glance which slide is out in a practical.

Arrange the trays by topic, for example plant slides on the upper trays and human histology lower down, and label each tray front so students return every slide to its place. The wood frame and aluminium trays give the collection a sturdy home, and when the collection grows a second unit can be stacked on top instead of finding new shelf space.

What to Specify When Ordering

- The number of cabinets, remembering that additional units stack on top of the first.
- Your slide format: the trays are made for 3 x 1 inch slides.
- The shelf or bench space available for a unit measuring 8 1/2 x 12 x 10 inch (H).
- Any prepared slide sets you want supplied to fill the cabinet.
