Description :

Floor Sticker, Safe Distance (Product Code: SLE/CH/200) is a social distancing floor sticker that marks the spot where a person should stand while waiting, so that queues keep a gap between people. It is used at lab entrances, preparation-room hatches, reception counters, canteens and exam hall doors, and is supplied by Jain Scientific Equipments Pvt Ltd (ScienceLab), Ambala, together with other educational laboratory equipment in India.

Supplied as	Box of 10 stickers
Suitable for	Schools, universities, retail and industrial premises

Typical Use

Decide the gap your institution wants between people, measure it along the floor with a tape, and fix one sticker at each standing point leading up to the counter or doorway. Students collecting apparatus from a store window, patients waiting at a college health room or customers at a till can then see at a glance where to stop. Placing the first sticker a clear step back from the counter also gives the person being served some room.

Lay the stickers on a swept, dry floor and press them down firmly; in high-traffic spots, check them weekly and replace any that are worn. Schools doing a school lab renovation in India often add the stickers at the same time as new benches, so that queue points for shared instruments are planned into the new layout from the start.
