What Is the Wooden Slide Case Used For?

Prepared slide sets are costly to replace and crack easily when stacked loose in a drawer. A wooden slide case gives each of the 100 slides its own place, so a school or college can store permanent slides by topic, such as plant anatomy, animal tissues or microbiology, and issue them for practicals without handling the whole collection. The lined interior helps when cases are carried between the store room and the lab.

Write a slide index on the card in the aluminium cardholder so students can find and return slides quickly. Store the case flat, so slides lie horizontally and mounted specimens stay in place, and keep it in a dry cupboard. Standard 75 x 26 mm slides fit; check the size of any specialist slides before storing them.

What to Specify When Ordering

- Number of cases needed for your slide collection
- Confirmation that your slides are the 75 x 26 mm size
- Whether prepared slide sets or cover glasses should be quoted with the cases
